Angel Wisdom – Taking Charge of Your Life

It is easy to get swept along with life; drifting from day to day with routine and doing what we feel we must. Please remember though that you need to take charge of your life in order to make any changes and follow the path your soul truly desires.

Sometimes in order to do this, you need to first take some time out to reflect and recharge; connect with nature and Mother Earth. Being away from home and your place of work allows you to clear your mind; tune into the wisdom of your higher self and listen more clearly to the guidance of angels, guides and loved ones in spirit.

By sitting or standing on the natural earth, you are connected to the energies of Mother Earth. Just ten minutes of this important time out will bring you healing and clarity.

If you find after periods of reflection that you are not entirely happy with the life you are leading, it is you who must take small steps towards what you really desire. However, you are not alone in this. Once you send out clear messages about what you are aiming towards the universe will begin to respond. Also remember that the angels are more than happy to help once you make that connection and welcome them into your life. They will begin to show you signs to guide and comfort you and open doors to smooth the pathway for you.

Although we are here to learn and develop our soul; we are also here for experience, fulfilment and enjoyment. If you are not enjoying your current pathway then it is time to make a commitment to yourself to start heading in a new direction. Do not limit yourself, anything is possible and achievable once you set that positive intention and ask for help from the many beings of light that surround you.

Once you make the time to connect with your inner wisdom and your helpers in spirit, you will find that your intuition guides and serves you well. You can test if a new situation or direction is right for you. Ask yourself and see how you feel. If you feel excited and happy about it; with a glow in the tummy then it sits right with your soul. If you feel pulled back and your jaw tightens for example then this is a clear indication that either this is the wrong direction for your soul or the time is not right yet to make this step.

Do not allow yourself to always be drawn into doing what you do not really want to do. Of course sometimes it is necessary to compromise but do not feel you must always follow the wishes and requests of others. You need to take charge of your own path and know what is right for you; where to go and who to spend time with and so on.

As you open up more spiritually you will get a sense of the places and people who's energies work best with yours and where you feel more comfortable. Sometimes though we are placed in situations for a short time where it is our role to bring others into the light. Perhaps just through a brief conversation or gentle guidance; this lights the spiritual spark within them and gently starts them on their journey.

The angels are grateful for this work you do and for every time you smile at someone or send healing and loving thoughts. This raises the vibrations of Mother Earth; helping the earth itself and the souls currently incarnated here.
